To Begin The Application Process

All candidates who wish to test for TCDPS must complete and pass a written exam and physical fitness assesment. The written exam requires a passing score of 70%. The physical fitness requirements are established through the Montana Law Enforcement Accademy. The exam and assessment is conducted and proctored by members of the Consortium with support from the Montana Law Enforcement Academy.

It is not possible for you to take the test in Toole County. Please refer to the consortium schedule on its web site www.mtlec.org for testing locations and times. At the conclusion of the testing cycle, all Consortium members receive a final list of those eligible. You may select any agency you are interested in working for during the registration process. If you are interested in working in Toole County make sure that you select our agency on the registration forms.

You must pass both parts of this process, to include the written and physical fitness assessment to be considered eligible

You must also complete and submit a Peace Officer Application to the TCDPS if a position becomes available during your period of elligibility on the Consortium list. This application will be mailed to you only when a position becomes available and you are on the elligibility list.

Once the application has been received, a detailed process of oral interviews, background investigations, and medical and psychological testing will begin. The final qualified applicant(s) may be selected though this process.
